Technological developments have a big impact because with the presence of new technology that continuously makes transactions easier. New innovations have sprung up in the banking world such as the existence of electronic payment instruments such as digital wallets. Increased public interest in using e-wallets for transactions can encourage the growth of various non-cash payment products. In Indonesia there are many digital wallet (e-wallet) applications, some of which are GoPay, OVO, LinkAja, DANA, etc. One of them is GoPay as a digital wallet that can grow rapidly. From 2017 to 2020 GoPay was drastically able to occupy the first position (market leader) for digital wallet service providers, but throughout its journey GoPay took second place in the most popular digital wallet survey according to the Kadance Survey (2021) where the first position was occupied by OVO. This phenomenon is certainly an interesting study of why GoPay's e-wallet service was able to beat its competitors, which originally occupied the first position to become the second position as a digital wallet service.
