

ABSTRACT

This study aims to analyze the effect of Bank Size, Efficiency, Financing to Deposit Ratio (FDR) and Non Performing Financing (NPF) on Profitability in increasing Company Value in Islamic Banks in Asia dan Africa.

The method used in this study is multiple linear regression which is operated by the SPSS 22.0 program. This research is a type of quantitative research. The data used in this study are secondary data obtained from Bloomberg. The population in this study is Sharia Banks in Asia dan Africa. The sampling technique used is the judgmental sampling method. The sample in this study was 18 Islamic banks in Asia dan Africa in the 2015-2018 period.

The results of this study in model 1 shows that company size, BOPO, FDR and NPF have a negative and significant effect on profitability. In model 2 shows that company size and profitability have a positive and not significant effect on PBV, FDR and NPF have a negative and not significant effect on PBV. While BOPO has a negative and significant effect on PBV. Profitability is not able to mediate the effect of company size, efficiency, FDR and NPF on firm value.

Keywords: Company Size, Efficiency, FDR, NPF, ROE and PBV.